COVID-19

Who should get tested?

- People without symptoms should not be tested.

- Those with mild or moderate symptoms should call their doctor before going, listen to their instructions and stay home. Assume you are sick and isolate yourself from others.

- People that are severely ill should call the Emergency Department before going. Follow their instructions to limit the exposure to others.

At this time, testing is limited. Tests are reserved for those that are severely ill, first responders and healthcare providers.
